Established back in the 1950s Eco del Mare is something of a heritage. Arguably one of the most beautiful bays in Italy, this tasteful beach paradise was frequented by many of the famous poets such as D.H.Lawrence, Shelley and Keats who enjoyed spending their summers on this part of the Ligurian coast. Eco del Mare thus became known as an enchanting and tranquil beach paradise away from the crowds where guests could come for the day and savour swimming in the clear water and relaxing with simply the sound of the waves – the Eco del Mare.

Tradition continued and today Eco del Mare is still a very special and unique place. Having remained in the Mozer family since its creation, Eco del Mare has maintained its original relaxed and tranquil atmosphere within the same structure but now benefits from tasteful luxurious touches reminiscent of barefoot African luxury. In addition to its original structure providing an exclusive private beach paradise, Eco del Mare now boasts six fabulous suites where the most discerning clients can enjoy complete luxury and privacy. Each of the suites has its own name such as 'Il Mare' (the sea) or 'Diamante' (diamonds) and thus its own character and charm. All are spacious with stunning interiors and shower rooms to die for! This simple rustic chic style is both luxurious and sensuous and has been thoughtfully created in keeping with the original concept of Eco del Mare. As the visitors to the beach go home from their day of relaxation guests staying in the suites have a treat in store. What could be better than sitting with a glass of chilled white wine from Bosoni, the excellent local wine producer, as the sun sets over Portovenere and the Golf of Poets with the lights twinkling in the distance! Then dinner on the wooden terrace, on the sand beneath the stars or on the terrace of one's suite before going to bed with the Eco del Mare and nothing else.

Perfect for honeymooners and couples looking for somewhere very special on the Italian coast and equally fabulous for a private gathering of family or friends who may wish to come here for a special celebration. With a masseur on site, yoga classes in the early evenings, superb cuisine at one's fingertips and the award winning Bandiera Blu waters in which to swim Eco del Mare really is a little corner of paradise!
