Set amidst 3000 hectares of natural untouched reserve, the outlook from Eremito is one of a kind. Reminiscent of an African lodge where one's soul can lap up the luxury of living with nature, Eremito is the unique and outstanding creation of Marcello Murzilli who built and developed the much talked about and sought after Hotelito Desconocido in Mexico, one of the world's top eco resorts. Today, after extensive searching for the ideal location in Italy, Marcello has created his second 'dream' luxury retreat but this time in the green hills of Umbria.

Built from scratch using thousands of stones it has taken four years to build Eremito in the traditional art of Italian masonry from the 13th century. Modern eco technology has been incorporated in keeping with the environment and the result is a majestic yet atmospheric and magical monastery style property. With fourteen 'celluzze' (single rooms), Eremito has been comfortably yet 'simply' furnished thus creating the 'luxury' of days gone by – no technology, no air con, no television and no phone. Each room has its own shower room and enchanting window seat from which one can gaze across the unpolluted hills, breathe in the clear air and cherish this place where one's mind can find true serenity.

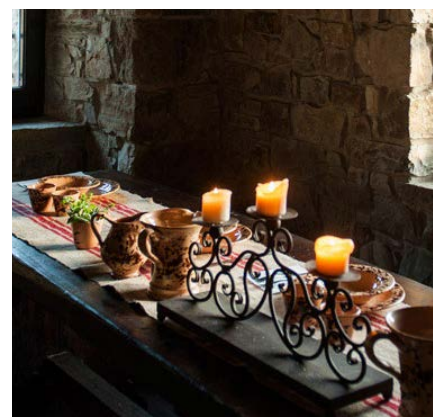

To reach Eremito one is met down by the river and then an exciting drive in the property's jeep (reminiscent indeed of Africa!) for several kilometres. Open the impressive wooden door and enter this heavenly retreat which will then be hard to leave. Walk along the candle lit passage accompanied by Gregorian chant filling the thick walls and into the fabulous and spacious living area littered with large floor cushions and rugs. Beyond here is the refectory with fireplace where meals can be enjoyed in the winter months whilst in the summer all meals can be eaten al fresco beneath the pergola at lunchtime and on the front terrace area in the evening as the sun goes down behind the lush and verdant Umbrian hills.

Days drift by and as they do Eremito gets into your blood. Get up with the sun, enjoy a walk down to the river, relaxing lunch followed by some reading and then maybe some yoga followed by a soak in the fabulous indoor hot tub ingeniously dug out from the rock and relaxation in the next door steam room entirely made of stone. Meals are vegetarian and delicious and ingredients are sourced from nearby bio-friendly local farms as well as from the extensive grounds of Eremito where abundant fruit and vegetables are grown.

Eremito is indeed unique in every way. For anyone wishing to escape the modern day life of IT, stress and tribulation this is the place to come. Luxury of a different kind – the best kind arguably!
